2007 Deadliest for U.S. in Iraq

Latest troop deaths bring total to 853, surpassing '04 high

BAGHDAD | The U.S. military announced six new deaths Tuesday, making 2007 the bloodiest year for American troops in Iraq despite a recent decline in casualties and a sharp drop in roadside bombings that Washington links to Iran.

With nearly two months left in the year, the annual toll is now 853 — three more than the previous worst of 850 in 2004.

But the grim milestone comes as the Pentagon points toward other encouraging signs as well — growing security in Baghdad and other former militant strongholds that could help consolidate the gains against extremists.

The previous annual record for U.S. military deaths in Iraq, in 2004, coincided with larger, more conventional battles such as the campaign to cleanse Fallujah of Sunni militants as well as U.S. clashes with Shiite militiamen in the sect's holy city of Najaf.

But the American military in Iraq reached its highest troop levels in Iraq this year — 165,000. Moreover, the military's decision to send soldiers out of large bases and into Iraqi communities means more troops have seen more "contact with enemy forces" than ever before, said Maj. Winfield Danielson, a U.S. military spokesman in Baghdad.

"It's due to the troop surge, which allowed us to go into areas that were previously safe havens for insurgents," Danielson said on Sunday. "Having more soldiers, and having them out in the communities, certainly contributes to our casualties." STEVEN R. HURST (AP)

Grass Lake Township, Mich., lived up to its name when authorities reported finding about 1,200 pounds of marijuana in a tractor-trailer. The driver, a 43-year-old man from Tucson, Ariz., was jailed after Sunday's bust at a weigh station along Interstate 94 in the township, about 75 miles west of Detroit. The trucker had been stopped for what state police called an equipment violation. An inspection turned up 48 bales of marijuana hidden among a shipment of sports drinks. (AP)

Apocalypse Unsure Whether This Counts

Charles and Linda Everson were driving back to their hotel in Manson, Wash., when their minivan was struck by a 600-pound cow. The Eversons were not hurt but the cow, which had fallen off a cliff, was not so lucky. Fire chief Arnold Baker said the couple missed being killed by a matter of inches in the accident Sunday on a highway near Manson. Everson, 49, said he didn't see the cow falling and didn't know what happened until afterward. He said he kept repeating: "I don't believe this. I don't believe this." (AP)

Sun-Like Star Has 4 Planets

LOS ANGELES | A new planet was discovered orbiting a sun-like star 41 light years away, making it the first known planetary quintet outside our solar system, astronomers said Tuesday.

The newfound planet joins four others circling the nearby star 55 Cancri in the constellation Cancer. Although it resides in the star's so-called habitable zone — a place where liquid water and mild temperatures should exist — it is more like Saturn than Earth and therefore not likely to support life.

Scientists have detected about 250 exoplanets, or planets orbiting a star other than the sun. The 55 Cancri star holds the record for number of confirmed planets. Only one other star is known to have four planets, while several others have three or less. ALICIA CHANG (AP)

Judiciary Panel Approves Mukasey

AG nominee is likely to be confirmed after floor debate on torture

WASHINGTON | Michael Mukasey's nomination as the nation's next attorney general was sent to the full Senate on Tuesday with an 11-8 endorsement from the Judiciary Committee.

The retired federal judge was expected to win confirmation easily by the end of next week, but not without floor discussion inspired by his refusal to say that waterboarding amounts to illegal torture.

Mukasey's comments on torture rankled senators of both parties, but the nominee averted a rebellion by promising to enforce any law Congress passes outlawing the practice — or quit the post if President Bush ignores his legal advice.

"We appreciate the vote of senators on the Judiciary Committee to forward the nomination of Judge Michael Mukasey to the full Senate," White House press secretary Dana Perino said.

Officials in both parties predicted Tuesday that Mukasey would win more than the 60 votes required to head off a filibuster. But before any votes are cast, a full-blown floor debate was expected about waterboarding, an interrogation method that simulates drowning and which is banned by domestic law and international treaties.

Those policies don't govern the CIA's use of the practice, however, and the Bush administration has sidestepped questions about whether it has allowed the agency to use it. LAURIE KELLMAN (AP)

Study: Extra Pounds Have Benefits

Being overweight may actually help people survive some illnesses

CHICAGO | Being 25 pounds overweight doesn't appear to raise your risk of dying from cancer or heart disease, says a new government study that seems to vindicate Grandma's claim that a few extra pounds won't kill you.

Released just a few weeks before Thanksgiving, the findings might

PUDGY PROTECTION

→ The study found that overweight people were about 40 percent less likely than normal-weight people to die from emphysema, pneumonia, injuries and various infections. The age group that seemed to benefit most from a little extra padding were people aged 25 to 59; older overweight people had reduced risks for those diseases, too.

comfort some who can't seem to lose those last 15 pounds. And they hearten proponents of a theory that it's possible to be "fit and fat."

The news isn't all good: Overweight people do have a higher chance of dying from diabetes and kidney disease.

And people who are obese — generally those more than 30 pounds overweight for their height — have a higher risk of death from a variety of ills, including some cancers and heart disease.

However, having a little extra weight actually seemed to help people survive some illnesses — results that baffled several leading health researchers.

It was the second study by the same government scientists who two years ago first suggested that deaths from being too fat were overstated.

"Excess weight does not uniformly increase the risk of mortality from any and every cause, but only from certain causes," said the study's lead author Katherine Flegal, of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. (AP)

Spacewalker recounts harrowing mission to mend solar panel

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. | With the mission finally coming to a close, Discovery's commander acknowledged Tuesday she was "extremely concerned" about the safety of the spacewalker who went out to fix the space station's ripped solar wing.

And the spacewalker, Scott Parazynski, said he barely managed to reach the tangled wires that had snagged the wing. If the damage had been just another foot away, "it would have been a Plan B or C or D," he said. "I don't know what it would have been."

As they prepared for a Wednesday landing, the seven astronauts recalled the dramatic highlight of their 15-day space station construction mission, an unprecedented repair of a torn solar panel.

Discovery's commander, Pamela Melroy, described how nervous she was when Parazynski approached the torn wing on the end of a 90-foot robotically operated boom.

"You may have heard me at one point kind of squeak out 'Be careful' as I saw the solar array coming toward him," Melroy said.

Parazynski said he could have used another pair of hands once he got right up to the solar wing, which was coursing with more than 100 volts of electricity. He had to stabilize the wing as it swayed back and forth, using a hockey-like stick wrapped with insulating tape.

It was like nothing he'd ever experienced on previous spacewalks. No one, in fact, had ever been so far away from the space station before.

"It was an unbelievably long distance away," he said. "You never come face to face with a solar array, so it was a very unique experience."

Police: Man Tortured With Cookies

EDWARDSVILLE, ILL. | Two students at Southern Illinois University burned a young man with freshly baked cookies after a drug deal went bad, prosecutors said.

Madison County prosecutors have charged Rosario James and Jordan Sallis with two counts of aggravated kidnapping and one count of robbery and aggravated battery.

Sheriff's Capt. Brad Wells said

three men went to James' house to buy marijuana, but two of them grabbed the drugs and fled without paying, leaving the third behind. The suspects allegedly beat the third man with a wooden paddle, burned his neck and shoulders with cookies after taking them from the oven, and poured urine over him, Wells said.

"It was just sheer torture," Wells said. (AP)

Sgt. 1st Class Pamela Johnson works at an Army recruiting office in Iowa. The military is trying to boost enlistment numbers.

Recruitment Rules Easing

Pentagon may make it easier for people with criminal pasts to enlist

WASHINGTON | Faced with higher recruiting goals, the Pentagon is quietly looking for ways to make it easier for people with minor criminal records to join the military, The Associated Press has learned.

The review, in its early stages, comes as the number of Army recruits needing waivers for bad behavior — such as trying drugs, stealing, carrying weapons on school grounds and fighting — rose from 15 percent in 2006 to 18 percent this year.

The goal of the review is to make cumbersome waiver requirements consistent across the services — the Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force — and reduce the number of petty crimes that now trigger the process. Still, some Army officers worry that disciplinary problems will grow as more soldiers with records, past drug use and behavior problems are brought in.

According to the Pentagon data, the bulk of all conduct waivers are for recruits involved in either drug offenses or serious misdemeanors. Over the past five years, the overall percentage of recruits involved in serious misdemeanors has grown.

Relaxing some of the waiver requirements may make it easier for the Army to meet increased pressure for recruits in the next few years.

The Army is already strained by the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and needs to grow to meet those demands and be prepared to respond to other crises.

The Pentagon has recommended the Army be increased by about 65,000 soldiers to a total of 547,000 and the Marines be increased by 27,000 to 202,000.

Top Judge Urges Revolt in Pakistan

Arrested justice sends message to lawyers in dispute with security

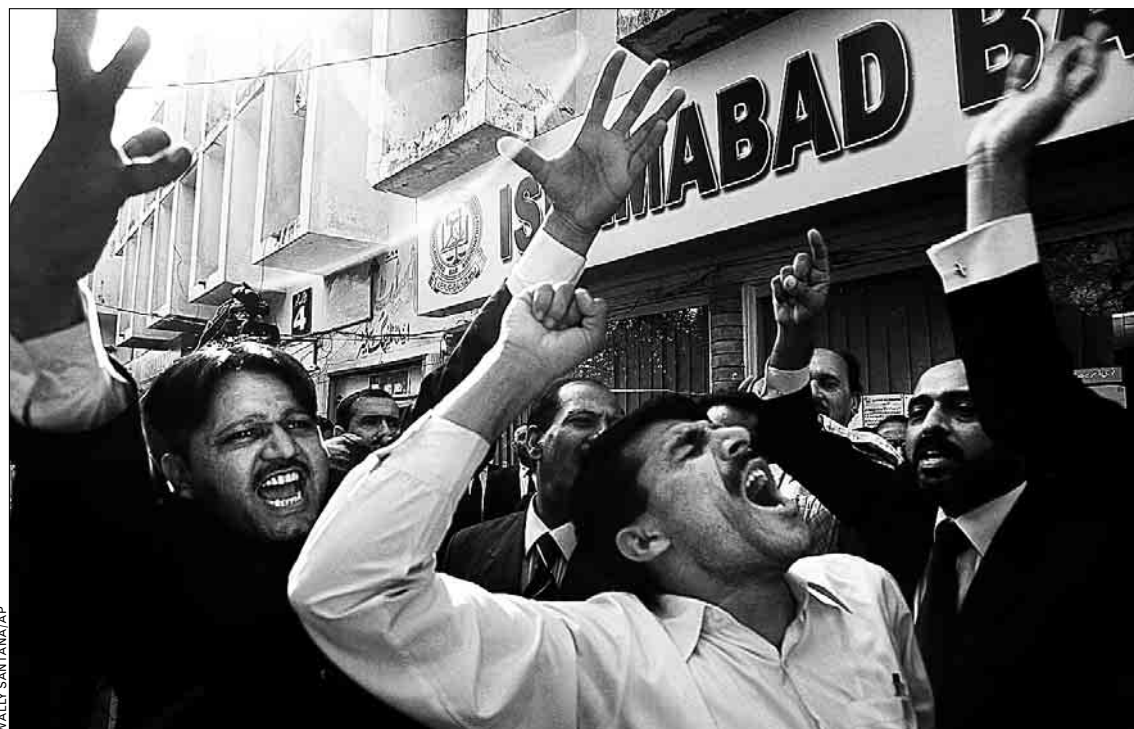

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistan's deposed chief justice called on lawyers Tuesday to revolt against President Gen. Pervez Musharraf's imposition of emergency rule and a crackdown on the opposition that has left thousands under arrest.

The government considered a delay in parliamentary elections despite Western demands they be held on schedule in January to bring democracy to a nuclear-armed country dogged by political uncertainty and rising Islamic militancy.

Fragile security in the northwest — cited by officials as a reason for the suspension of the constitution — deteriorated further as pro-Taliban militants seized a town from outnumbered security forces.

While Musharraf says emergency powers are needed so the government can better fight Islamic extremists, his crackdown has been aimed at lawyers and liberal political activists opposing his rule. The Supreme Court, in particular, had chipped away at his powers this year.

Chief Justice Iftikhar Mohammed Chaudhry, a figurehead for the resistance, has been under house arrest since Saturday night. But he managed to address hundreds

Suicide bombing kills 28 as children were greeting legislators

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A bomb attack struck a group of lawmakers Tuesday as they were being greeted by children on a visit to a sugar factory in Afghanistan's normally peaceful north. At least 28 people were killed, including five parliament members, and dozens of children were wounded.

Girl With 8 Limbs Seeks Normalcy

2-year-old undergoes surgery to remove her 'parasitic twin'

BANGALORE, INDIA | Revered by some in her village as the reincarnation of a Hindu goddess, a 2-year-old girl born with four arms and four legs was undergoing surgery Tuesday to leave her with a normal body.

The girl named Lakshmi is joined to a "parasitic twin" that stopped developing in the mother's womb. The surviving fetus absorbed the limbs, kidneys and other body parts of the undeveloped fetus. Her two spines are merged, she has four kidneys, entangled nerves, two stomach cavities and two chest cavities. She cannot stand up or walk.

A team of 30 doctors was removing the extra limbs and organs, surgery that, if successful, would give her a good chance to live past adolescence. They have already separated the fused spines, and the next step will be to remove the extra limbs and the rest of the "parasite," said Dr. Sharan Patil, the orthopedic sur-

"As of now, the child has been responding very well," Patil said several hours into the operation.

Children born with deformities in deeply traditional rural parts of India, like the remote village in the northern state of Bihar that Lakshmi hails from, are often viewed as reincarnated gods. The young girl is no different — she is named after the four-armed Hindu goddess of wealth, and her parents say she is revered in her village. INCHEON, SOUTH KOREA | North Korea is cooperating with U.S. experts to disable its nuclear weapons-making facilities, a U.S. diplomat said Tuesday after a trip to the communist nation to oversee the start of the work this week.

Sung Kim, the State Department's top expert on Korea, said North Korean officials were "very cooperative" and that work on disablement had begun at three major facilities at the main Yongbyon nuclear complex, 60 miles north of Pyongyang. That includes a 5-megawatt reactor that can generate plutonium for bombs, and nuclear fuel fabrication and reprocessing plants.

"I think we are off to a good start and will look forward to completing the task by the end of the year as planned," Kim said after arriving in Seoul. (AP)

Landslide Adds to Woes in Mexico

Scared cattle credited with warning villagers; at least 14 still missing

OSTUACAN, MEXICO | When a mountain of mud and a wall of water buried a Mexican village in a "mini-tsunami," only 14 of the 600 people there disappeared.

One reason was jittery cattle.

The villagers' nervous animals somehow sensed the impending disaster and fled to higher ground. Many people got out of bed to chase after them, then watched as their homes were engulfed when a rain-soaked hill collapsed, a senior official said Tuesday. "The animals felt it and they ran," said federal Interior Secretary Francisco Ramirez Acuna.

Rescuers dove through a murky river and dug among mountains of earth in search of victims Tuesday, two days after the landslide crashed down on the tiny hamlet of San Juan Grijalva in Mexico's southernmost state, Chiapas.

Fourteen to 16 people were reported missing Ramirez said. Chiapas Civil Protection official Alfredo Chan told The Associated Press that authorities would also search nearby towns to see if victims had sought refuge there.

The landslide in San Juan Grijalva added to woes caused by widespread flooding and heavy rains across Mexico and Central America. In Honduras, authorities evacuated dozens of people on the Atlantic coast and at least two people drowned in floodwaters, including a 2-year-old boy swept away by a raging river.

Turkish Soldiers Await Go-Ahead For Incursion

ANKARA, TURKEY | Tens of thousands of Turkish troops were poised Tuesday on the border with Iraq awaiting the order to attack Kurdish fighters, and President Abdullah Gul said the country will do "what it believes to be right" to tame the rebels.

But with winter rapidly approaching in the mountainous region, and pressure from the U.S. to avoid an all-out cross-border incursion, officials and experts said Turkey will likely be looking toward a limited offensive involving raids and aerial assaults.

Several possibilities are currently being discussed, including F-16 strikes on rebel positions, helicopter raids and special forces missions, according to a government official familiar with the planning. (AP)

Oil Prices Hit Record High

Gas jumps 2 cents; analysts predict costs may hit $4 next year

NEW YORK | Oil futures jumped to a new record of more than $97 per barrel Tuesday after bombings in Afghanistan and an attack on a Yemeni oil pipeline compounded the supply concerns that have driven crude prices higher in recent weeks. Those concerns were also fed by a government prediction on Tuesday that domestic oil inventories will fall further this year while consumption rises.

At the pump, meanwhile, gas prices continued to rise, following oil's 39 percent price rally since August. The national average price of a gallon of gas jumped 2 cents overnight to $3.024 per gallon, according to AAA and the Oil Price Information Service.

Separately, the federal Energy Information Administration reported that diesel fuel prices reached a national average of $3.303 per gallon, a new record.

The average price of gas rose to $3.024 per gallon on Tuesday, according to AAA.

If oil prices continue to rise, it might be some time until consumers see relief at the pump. Some analysts predict prices could rise as high as $3.50 to $4 per gallon next summer.

The Energy Information Administration is predicting gas prices will remain at more than $2.90 per gallon for the rest of the year and will set per new record national average of $3.235 per gallon by May. In May 2007, prices peaked at $3.227 per gallon as refiners, faced with a series of unexpected outages, struggled to produce enough gas to meet demand. (AP)

Mattel Recalls 172,000 Kitchen Toys

WASHINGTON | Mattel Inc. on Tuesday recalled more than 172,000 Fisher-Price kitchen toys in the United States and Europe because several children choked and gagged on small, detachable parts.

The company has received 48 reports of small parts separating from these toys, which feature a sink, a refrigerator and a range. One child choked on a detached piece and needed to undergo the Heimlich maneuver for the part to be removed. One child started to choke and two children had pieces in their mouths and gagged.

"Small parts choking hazards with toys is one of the most serious dangers to children in the United States," Scott Wolfson, Consumer Product Safety Commission spokesman, said. "This should send a message to parents to take this toy away from the child immediately." (AP)

Prince William Elementary School Principal Found Dead

The principal of a Prince William County elementary school was found dead in a county park Monday. Police say the body of 44-year-old Derek Michael Drummond of Bristow was found Monday afternoon by an 8-year-old girl and her grandfather who were hiking in Locust Shade Park. Police spokeswoman Erika Hernandez says there were no signs of trauma or foul play. Police are waiting for an autopsy report and results of a toxicology test. Drummond was principal of Cedar Point since it opened in 2001 and before that was principal of Occoquan Elementary School. (AP)

Injured in Propane Tank Explosion in Rowhouse

One man was seriously injured when a propane tank exploded in a Baltimore rowhouse and four children next door were pulled from the rubble after a lateral wall collapsed. It happened in the 3400 block of Hickory Avenue in the Hampden area of the city on Tuesday. Fire Department spokesman Kevin Cartwright says the 48-year-old man was taken to Shock Trauma with second-degree burns over most of his body. He says the children didn't suffer any serious injuries, but they are being evaluated. One child was taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital as a precaution. (AP)

Power Plant Worker Dies After Ventilation Shaft Fall

Officials say an employee at Maryland's Chalk Point power plant fell into a ventilation shaft and died Tuesday. Prince George's County fire and EMS spokesman Mark Brady said the worker fell about 80 feet into the shaft. Brady said the department received a call about the fall at 2:30 p.m. About 40 minutes later, the commanding officer on the scene confirmed that the worker had died. It was unclear how the fall occurred. A message seeking comment was left for a spokeswoman for the plant's owner, Atlanta-based Mirant Corp. (AP)

Vines Looks to Revive Va. NAACP

New state chapter president wants to bring back activism

RICHMOND, VA. | The Rev. J. Rayfield Vines Jr., a veteran of the civil rights movement, wants to revive that form of activism as the new president of the NAACP's Virginia chapter.

"I think the brand of the NAACP is activity," Vines said. "Somehow we have changed from activity to advocacy, and under my administration I plan to take the NAACP back to activity — you know, protest in the streets, picketing, those kinds of things."

Vines

Part of his call to activism, he hopes, will attract more young peo-

Vines, pastor of a suburban Baptist church, was elected last month to a two-year term as head of the 16,000-member ple to the nearly century-old National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"The action piece will bring the young folks in," Vines told the Richmond Times-Dispatch. "They're action. They're not advocates."

Vines also wants the NAACP to focus on early childhood education and opportunities for black businesses, and picket payday lenders, whose lending practices prey on many low-income black people.

Vines was born in Suffolk and educated at Booker T. Washington

High School there. As a college student, he marched alongside Martin Luther King Jr. in Washington in 1963.

"Every march they've had in D.C., I've been there," he said. "Activism is part of my makeup. I have no problem with protests. I have no problem with picketing."

Vines will heed his own call for activism later this month. On Nov. 16, he and other NAACP leaders will join a protest in front of the Justice Department headquarters in Washington. (AP)

House Seeks Museum Board Reconstruction

21 private citizens sought to help govern the Smithsonian

WASHINGTON | Legislation introduced Tuesday in a House subcommittee seeks to overhaul the Smithsonian Institution's governing board, replacing government officials with private citizens to improve oversight and fundraising.

It is the first official proposal to completely change the makeup of the Smithsonian Board of Regents after a spending scandal forced out the institution's former top official. The board currently includes private citizens along with six members of Congress, Vice President Dick Cheney and Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts.

District of Columbia Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton introduced the bill to expand the board from 17 to 21 members — all private citizens — who could devote more time to handling the Smithsonian's $2.5 billion facilities maintenance backlog. The current board, she said, is dominated by "dedicated but overextended" officials who have to make their federal jobs their first priorities.

"The existing structure may have fit the Smithsonian 160 years ago, but, today, the structure has proven to be a relic that has disserved the institution," Norton said in a statement introducing the bill. (AP)

Museum Worker Arrested for Porn

NEW YORK | An employee of the National Children's Museum in Washington was arrested Tuesday on child pornography charges, accused of sending about 80 explicit images this summer to others, including a New York City detective.

Robert A. Singer, 49, of Falls Church, Va., was arrested at his home on charges that he sent the pornographic images to a New York detective who posed as a mother and daughter after Singer initiated contact in an AOL chat room, according to a complaint filed in Manhattan federal court.

The images sent to the detective by Singer from his computer at the museum depicted sexual acts between minors and adults, the complaint said.

In the complaint, Singer was identified as a spokesman for the Capital Children's Museum, which closed in September 2004 to prepare for renovations and a 2012 reopening as the National Children's Museum. (AP)

New Subaru Not Very Impressive

2008 Impreza WRX meant to rival Honda, Mazda counterparts

LETDOWN | The 2008 Impreza base model and Impreza WRX — available in four- and five-door models — are stylistic chloroform, boring and generic Asian shapes draped over a longer and taller frame. The wheelbase is up 4.5 inches to 103.1 inches. The object here is to enlarge the cabin to make the Impreza more of a mainline choice, to rival competitors such as the Honda Civic and Mazda3.

For every upside you can count — the doors now have full-frame windows that dramatically improve noise levels — there's a tawdry downside, such as the cheesy, straight-out-of-Pep Boys mirror chrome taillights.

The interior is vastly improved, with the organic twin-scallop dash design reminiscent of the Tribeca. The materials rank well, as do the bright orange instruments and dense vinyl dash coverings. The touch-screen navigation/satellite radio system works like a champ.

In the interest of making the WRX more civilized and ride-compliant, the engineers have put the car on the springs from ballpoint pens. From corner to corner, the springs collect and release kinetic energy in a way that makes it kind of sloppy and unmanageable.

I suspect the engineers dialed back the WRX knowing that the next-generation STI — due in the United States in March 2008 — would be along to satisfy the flat-cornering blood lust of enthusiasts.

But I don't see how enfeebling the WRX helps matters.

No-Snow Substitutes

If winter hides again this year, think of the alternatives to skiing

DESTINATIONS | It was late January before winter turned serious in upstate New York last year, but before that — including the lucrative Christmas school break — rain fell instead of snow, and warm temperatures thwarted even snowmakers. Skiers cried in frustration.

“Everybody was pretty much climbing the walls,” said Maria Lattanzio, activities vice president for the New York Capital District Ski Council. Skiing, she said, is “kind of what we live for.”

But should that weather pattern recur, some resort areas have alternatives.

In the Adirondack Mountain village of Lake Placid, it's skating, bobsledding and watching world-class ski jumpers, aerialists and figure skaters either at scheduled events or in training. Even in unseasonably warm spells, the refrigeration systems work, and during the evenings you can skate on the former Olympic oval overlooking Main Street in the village that hosted the Winter Games in 1932 and 1980.

Another family option in a too-warm winter is swimming — indoors.

In the eastern Adirondack foothills near Lake George, the Six Flags

Kids skate around the Lake Placid oval, on which events were held for the Winter Olympics in 1932 and 1980. The refrigeration system works even during warm spells.

Great Escape Lodge and Indoor Waterpark is less than 25 miles from the Gore and West Mountain ski areas.

At Greek Peak Mountain Resort

in central New York's Cortland, the Hope Lake indoor water park is under construction, scheduled to open next year.

Scott Brandi, executive director of Ski Areas of New York, said snowmaking technology has improved so much that skiers in the city should always call or check online, even when the weather appears impossibly warm outside their windows. Baseball to Consider Using Replay

General managers vote to allow video just for boundary decisions

BASEBALL | Baseball could have a new position next year: replay judge.

General managers recommended for the first time Tuesday that instant replay be used to help umpires make difficult decisions.

The proposal, approved by a 25-5 vote, was limited to boundary calls — whether potential home runs are fair or foul, whether balls go over fences or hit the tops and bounce back, and whether fans interfere with possible homers.

"We've taken the first step. The question will be now, what do we do?" said Jimmie Lee Solomon, executive vice president for baseball operations in the commissioner's office. "We have glacier-like movement in baseball, so I'm hopeful that we can at least start meaningful discussions about it."

Solomon said the next step will be to speak with commissioner Bud Selig, who opposes the use of replays but said last month he was willing to let GMs examine the issue. If Selig gives the go-ahead, Solomon and staff in the commissioner's office would draft a detailed replay proposal that GMs could vote on when they gather next month at the winter meetings in Nashville, Tenn.

"All anybody is interested in is getting it right," Chicago White Sox GM Ken Williams said. "It will be a lot easier and less time to get that right than some of these arguments that ensue when a call is disputed."

Replay eventually would have to be approved by the unions for players and umpires, and possibly in a vote by owners.

Solomon said if replay couldn't be put in place for the start of next season, it was possible it could make its debut in the postseason.

Pettitte Declines Yankees Option, Needs More Time

Andy Pettitte told the Yankees he was declining his $16 million option for next season because he still was uncertain whether he wanted to pitch again or retire. The 35-year-old left-hander had until Wednesday to decide on the option. "If Andy decides to play, I am confident we can reach an agreement with the Yankees within 24 hours," Pettitte's agent, Randy Hendricks, said in an e-mail. "The only options, as Andy has stated, are the Yankees or retirement." (AP)

Report: Guillen Bought HGH

Power-hitting outfielder Jose Guillen bought nearly $20,000 worth of steroids and human growth hormone from 2003 to 2005, the San Francisco Chronicle reported Tuesday. Former major leaguers Matt Williams and Ismael Valdez also purchased performance-enhancing drugs, in 2002, the newspaper said. (AP)

Maddux Wins Record 17th Gold Glove Award

BASEBALL | Padres pitcher Greg Maddux won his record 17th Gold Glove while Boston first baseman Kevin Youkilis earned his first award Tuesday for fielding excellence.

Detroit catcher Ivan Rodriguez won for the 13th time and outfielders Andruw Jones, Ichiro Suzuki and Torii Hunter added to their totals. The Colorado Rockies, who set a major league record for fielding percentage, did not have a winner.

Maddux broke a tie with Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson and pitcher Jim Kaat for the most Gold Gloves.

Known for his quick reflexes on the mound even at 41, Maddux won his first Gold Glove in 1990 with the Chicago Cubs. Earlier this week, Maddux and San Diego agreed to a one-year contract for next year. (AP)

Steve McNair finished Monday night's game with a QB rating of 44.9. He has thrown just two touchdowns since Dec. 31, 2006.

'Embarrassed' Ravens Must Regroup

Team has no excuses after pathetic showing on national television

RAVENS | The Baltimore Ravens' humiliating meltdown Monday night got so ugly that Hall of Fame Steelers cornerback Mel Blount took a shot at them from the sidelines.

"They're pretty pathetic," Blount told a national television audience during Baltimore's 38-7 rout at the hand of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "That's embarrassing."

The Ravens (4-4) are in no position to argue the point.

Not after the most lopsided defeat in coach Brian Billick's nine-year tenure and the second-worst in Ravens history.

Not after veteran quarterback Steve McNair fumbled twice, threw one interception, and was sacked five times as he finished with a dismal 44.9 quarterback rating.

Not after a short-handed secondary, missing starting cornerbacks Chris McAlister and Samari Rolle, was carved up by Steelers QB Ben Roethlisberger for a career-high five touchdown passes. Roethlisberger finished with a 158.3 quarterback rating, completing 13 of 16 passes for 209 yards and no picks.

"If you don't think it's embarrassing, you're not competitive," McNair said. "Of course when you get beat on national television, it's embarrassing, but you got to let it go."

McNair has thrown only two touchdown passes dating back to Dec. 31, 2006, losing six fumbles and throwing six interceptions during that span.

"I won't justify it; I won't try to explain it," Billick said, referring to the entire game. "They'll be disappointed. They're going to be embarrassed. We all are, but this team has a lot of faith in itself." (AP)

Steelers Exude Mystique

Pittsburgh is playing as well as anyone in front of a home crowd

NFL | The Pittsburgh Steelers aren't good right now in the way the New England Patriots are. Maybe not good like the Indianapolis Colts, either.

They're also not a team opponents are eager to play. Not with Ben Roethlisberger throwing the ball better than ever and a defense making game-altering plays like so many Steelers teams before them.

No matter the era, be it the Super Bowl-filled '70s or the long run of successful seasons they enjoyed in the 1990s and into this century, the Steelers have rarely performed better than they did in roughing up Baltimore 38-7 on Monday night.

Fittingly, many of their one dozen Hall of Famers were on hand as part of the team's 75th season celebration, with Roethlisberger putting on a Terry Bradshaw-like show with five TD passes before halftime.

Linebacker James Harrison had a night Jack Ham and Jack Lambert would have envied, with three forced fumbles, a fumble recovery, an interception and 3½ sacks. He might have won the NFL's defensive player of the month award in Clark Haggans pumps up the crowd during the Steelers home win over the Ravens.

No Longer Playing Safe

→ Against the Jets, LaRon Landry finally got to do what he does best: terrorize the quarterback. He's been everything the team hoped he would be. | Today, Sports

one night.

"We made splash plays," coach Mike Tomlin said Tuesday, "and by splash plays I mean significant plays: sacks, fumbles, turnovers, big plays in the passing game."

The victory sets up the Steelers (6-2) to take a firm grip on the AFC North lead if they beat second-place Cleveland (5-3) on Sunday at Heinz Field. After that, the Jets (1-8), Dolphins (0-8) and Bengals (2-6) follow in successive weeks.

The Steelers have had a couple of glitches, road defeats against the Cardinals (3-5) and Broncos (3-5) but they've won their four home games by a combined score of 122-26.

"I like to think there's some mystique in that," Tomlin said. "The reality is that the four games we played at home, we stepped into the stadium ready to play."

ALAN ROBINSON (AP)

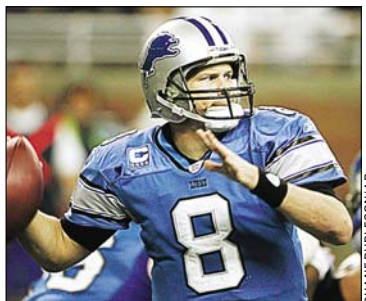

No One Is Laughing at Kitna Now

The 6-2 Lions are just 4 wins from matching QB's goal of 10 wins

NFL | When Jon Kitna first said he would be disappointed if the Detroit Lions didn't win at least 10 games this season, most people who have followed the lackluster franchise chuckled.

The quarterback went a step farther last week, boldly saying the Lions were capable of special things such as winning the Super Bowl.

Eyes rolled, heads shook from side to side and some joked the optimistic Kitna should be leading one of the city's sagging auto companies.

QB Jon Kitna predicted 10 wins for the Lions, and now he's saying Super Bowl.

But when the Lions pounded the Denver Broncos 44-7 on Sunday and improved to 6-2, even jaded cynics were converted.

Detroit could conceivably crumble down the stretch. Evidence supporting that opinion includes two blowout losses on the road this season, a history of one playoff victory since winning the NFL title a half-century ago, and a league-high 72 losses from 2001-06.

But since their 34-3 loss to the Redskins, they have looked impressive in three straight wins over the NFC South-leading Tampa Bay Buccaneers, at Chicago and against the banged-up Broncos.

"Let's not get ahead of ourselves, we're 6-2 at the halfway point," said offensive tackle Jeff Backus. "We're playing our best football right now, and we need to continue to improve to get to that elite status. LARRY LAGE (AP)

NASCAR Leader Takes Brief Detour

Johnson tries to relax with a short trip to Mexico between races

AUTO RACING | Finding time to relax has never been easy for Jimmie Johnson, especially during a championship chase.

Now that he has a Nextel Cup title on his resume and a wife who pushes him to chill out every now and then, Johnson has learned how to take a break.

So, he packed up and headed to Mexico following Sunday's win at Texas Motor Speedway, which gave him a 30-point lead in the standings over teammate Jeff Gordon with two races to go in the Chase for the championship.

"We figured between going to Texas and Phoenix it was easy to stop off for a short getaway," Johnson said. "My wife is really amazing about planning this stuff and encouraging me to get out and do things. ... In years past, I spent a lot of time just sitting around overthinking everything."

There's not much to overthink now, as Johnson has opened a decent lead in this title hunt. A year ago, he took the points lead after Texas and never looked back in winning his first championship. Now he hopes to do it again, and with three straight wins, has the momentum heading into Sunday's race at Phoenix International Raceway.

"I'm not ready at all to say we're in control of this thing," he said.

Johnson heads to Phoenix on Thursday and plans to race go-karts with his No. 48 crew for one last diversion before the Nextel Cup garage opens on Friday morning.

"Once we get into the track, it will be all business," Johnson said. "But I imagine I'll be pretty relaxed when I get there." JENNA FRYER (AP)

Ohio State Stays Focused on Illinois

No. 1 Buckeyes say they won't allow a repeat of last year's squeaker

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Ohio State may not have been concentrating solely on Illinois when it struggled to beat the Illini last season.

The Buckeyes swear it won't happen again — even as a date with archrival Michigan looms on Nov. 17.

So, why did the unbeaten Buckeyes have so much trouble in a 17-10 victory at Champaign, Ill., against a team that finished the season 2-10?

"I think we just got lazy, to be honest," Ohio State receiver Brian Hartline said Tuesday. "Sometimes the Illinois name can get you. They were never a big powerhouse. We kind of got a little bit too complacent last year and confident at that point in the year. They caught us sleeping, and we couldn't snap out of it."

Coach Jim Tressel said he didn't foresee that being a problem this Saturday, with the Buckeyes (10-0, 6-0 Big Ten) again ranked No. 1 hosting an Illinois (7-3, 4-2) team having a turnaround season.

"This group really understands that we've got work to do," Tressel said.

No one could blame the Buckeyes if they're peeking ahead. The Big Ten has become a two-horse race, with Michigan and the Buckeyes both unbeaten through six games. The Wolverines play at Wisconsin in another marquee game on Saturday.

Hartline didn't blame last year's looming Michigan game for the Buckeyes' lack of focus at Illinois so much as a lack of respect for the Illini.

He said that's changed dramatically.

"The amount of respect we have for that team is just about as high as anybody else," he said. "It'll be a different game this year." (AP)

HEISMAN HOPEFULS | COLLEGE GRIDIRON GREATS

1 If Oregon finishes the year in the national title game, you have to think QB Dennis Dixon is a lock. He's thrown for 2,074 yards and 20 TDs and ranks fourth in passing efficiency. 2. Florida's Tim Tebow has accounted for 35 touchdowns this year (21 passing and 14 running). He has already run for more touchdowns than any quarterback in SEC history. 3. When you tie an SEC rushing record, you know you're doing something right. Arkansas RB Darren McFadden, who was the favorite coming into the year, ran for an SEC-best 321 yards against South Carolina, putting him back on the Heisman map. 4. QB, Boston College Matt Ryan still has the numbers to be a contender, but three picks in a loss to Florida State definitely hurts. (EXPRESS)

Sixty-Five College Scholarships Available for Children of Federal Employees for the 2008-2009 Academic Year

$4,000 Scholarship – One award, renewable up to three years. (Total value equals $16,000)

$3,000 Scholarship – Three awards, renewable up to two years. (Total value equals $9,000 per award)

$2,000 Scholarship – Six awards, renewable up to one year. (Total value equals $4,000 per award)

$1,000 Scholarship – Fifty-five awards.

These scholarships are being made available by Worldwide Assurance for Employees of Public Agencies (WAEPA). WAEPA is a non-profit association founded in 1943 that is governed by a Board of Directors composed of senior career executives of the U.S. government who serve on a voluntary non-paid basis. (To be eligible for these scholarships, applicants must be children of WAEPA life insurance policyholders).

Since 1996 WAEPA has declared eleven premium refunds, which has resulted in WAEPA members receiving over $33 million in premium refunds. The latest refund, processed in September 2007, totaled in excess of $5 million.

To learn more about WAEPA, its College Scholarship program, as well as its life insurance products, and premium refund history, visit www.waepa.org or call 1-800-368-3484.

IT'S, LIKE, TOTALLY IMPORTANT: "Clueless" star and animal rights activist Alicia Silverstone has recorded a voicemail message encouraging people to pressure their senators to support the FRESH Act, which would cut subsidies for unhealthy foods.

The Next Big Thing

Is an 18-year-old kid with hot tracks and all the right moves

RISE STAR | When Chris Brown talks about the intricacies of his white-hot career — whether it's directing music videos, co-writing songs, his latest film or his fledgling record label — he sounds like your typical, seasoned music veteran.

Every so often, though, he'll slip a little something into the conversation that reminds you that despite his budding superstar status, he's still just 18.

"Dudes have bought $15,000 worth of champagne and brought it over [to me]," says the 6-foot-1-inch Brown, who sports an assortment of tattoos. "I just give it to the older people, like, 'Y'all can have that, I don't drink. Give me a cranberry juice or a Sprite!'"

But Brown's preference for soda may be one of the few childlike aspects of his world these days. Already a double-platinum success — thanks to his 2005, self-titled debut — as he releases his sophomore album, "Exclusive," this week, he seems poised to deliver on industry hype that he is the music world's next king. The album's first single, "Kiss Kiss," featuring T-Pain, is already a No. 1 hit after just seven weeks on the Billboard pop charts.

NATURAL ABILITY: In an age of fame without talent, Chris Brown's smooth vocals and explosive dance moves may revive the credibility of the music industry.

"Chris is a true artist," says Andre Harris, one-half of the Philadelphia-based production duo known as Dre & Vidal, who've produced tracks on both of Brown's albums as well as for Justin Timberlake, Usher and Mary J. Blige, among others. "He takes his craft seriously, and you can

"I love Chris Brown. He got down at the Grammys, and he's as bad as he wants to be. He's numero uno!"

ARETHA FRANKLIN, QUEEN OF SOUL

just see his potential. He's the next little dude."

Harris is not the only one with that opinion. Brown — who sings with a high tenor and is a spectacularly gifted dancer — was anointed "The Future of R&B" on his inaugural Vibe magazine cover in February 2006. No less than Michael Jackson has sang his praises, and Timberlake gushed about his talents after Brown's show-stopping performance at this year's MTV Video Music Awards.

Brown even has the queen of soul in a frenzy.

"I love Chris Brown," Aretha Franklin recently told The Associated Press. "He got down on the Grammys, and he's as bad as he wants to be. He's definitely numero uno!" REGINA ROBERTSON (AP)

Special Report solves the “My home isn’t selling” problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A “Special Report” explodes what its author exposes as “The myth of slow home sales.” In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report’s procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Are you Depressed?

Have you been diagnosed with Major Depressive Disorder or Depression?

Have you tried at least one prescription anti-depressant medication that didn't work for you?

If you are between 18 and 65 years of age, and have had a poor response to antidepressant medications in the past, you may qualify to participate in a research study, receive investigational medication and study-related physical exams.

B-LIST PLACEMENT GRANTED: Kathy Griffin will star in her sixth stand-up special for Bravo, on Nov. 29 at 9 p.m. The special, "Kathy Griffin: Straight to Hell," was taped in front of a sold-out crowd at the Chicago Theater. She's almost a big deal.

The adaptable Eagles will perform at the 41st Annual CMAs

ONSTAGE | Kenny Chesney, Brad Paisley, Rascal Flatts, George Strait and Keith Urban stand nominated for entertainer of the year at the 41st Annual Country Music Awards (8 p.m., ABC). Paisley and Strait lead the pack with five nominations each, in categories including best male vocalist, and both single and album of the year.

Among the evening's many performances is an appearance by the Eagles, the popular country-rock group of the 1970s whose songs have continued to sell in the intervening decades as the Eagles have gone through a cycle of reunion tours.

The band has also been around long enough to profit from the many changes in musical format. It's conceivable that a teenage Eagles fan could have purchased "Take It Easy" as a 45-rpm single in 1972 from a record store down on the corner.

To market their latest album, the Eagles have signed an exclusive deal with the world's largest big-box retailer, an outfit that sells everything from rutabagas to wide-screen televisions. You can't find their new album in a record store. If you could find a record store. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Second Opinion

Science

The unorthodox ideas of Wilhelm Reich are being reconsidered

Physician-scientist Wilhelm Reich, best known for his claims of a cosmic life force associated with sexual orgasm, died in federal prison, and the government burned tons of his books and other publications and destroyed his equipment.

But half a century later, a small number of scientists and other believers are working to advance the European-born psychiatrist's work on what he called "orgone energy" — a theory largely forgotten in the scientific mainstream.

"Personally, I think it's going to be a long time before all of his work is understood and recognized," said Reich's granddaughter, Renata Reich Moise, a nurse-midwife and artist in the coastal town of Hancock, Maine.

Reich died on Nov. 3, 1957, in a federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa., where he was sent for ignoring an injunction obtained by the Food and Drug Administration that outlawed a device he called an orgone energy accumulator. Reich believed it could charge the body with essential life energy, heightening vitality and potentially helping to heal disease.

Critics point to some of these more unconventional ideas in deriding him as a quack. But supporters say he was a brilliant man whose ideas warrant further exploration.

The 50th anniversary of his death is being marked by a major exhibition on him and his work that opens Nov. 15 at the Jewish Museum in Vienna, Austria, the city where he attended medical school, began his psychiatric practice and studied under Sigmund Freud.

Also this month, archives of Reich's unpublished papers, which have been stored at Harvard Medical School, will become available to researchers for the first time. Reich had stipulated that his papers be opened only 50 years after his death.

In Rangeley, scientists and doctors from the U.S. and Europe gathered this summer for a conference that explored the prospects of seeking FDA approval for clinical trials of orgone accumulator blankets to treat burn victims.

Reich is described by the American Psychoanalytic Association as "one of the most brilliant, creative and controversial of the pioneering analysts." He was the first to focus on character analysis rather than neurotic symptoms. He linked a healthy sex life, which he called "orgastic potency," to emotional wellness, believing that failure to discharge sexual energy resulted in neurotic disorders.

His more controversial work came after he veered away from psychotherapy into laboratory experiments in Norway that led to the discovery of what he called "bions" — basic life forms that gave off orgone energy.

After moving to the U.S. just before the start of World War II, he focused on isolating and collecting that energy and went on to test its effect on cancer. His orgone accumulators eventually caught the attention of the FDA. After an investigation, the agency branded the devices fraudulent.

Even as the anniversary-related events rekindle memories of Reich and his theories, some of his supporters worry that they are in a race against time. The challenge, they say, is to keep his work alive at a time when Reich is not being taught in medical schools.

Kevin Hinchey, who is writing a book about Reich's work in the U.S., said most of the doctors and scientists who've taken an interest in Reich's life are baby boomers.

"If something dramatic isn't done to bring his work before the medical and scientific community, I really wonder what's going to happen when the baby boomers die. There's not a lot of younger people who are reading Reich." JERRY HARKAVY (AP)

Jerks Need Not Apply

Business

Having an agreeable personality is the key to landing some jobs

A resume and a brief job interview can't answer the question that matters most to a new hire's co-workers: Is this person an absolute pain?

Despite a labor shortage in many sectors, some employers are pickier than ever about who they hire. Businesses in fields where jobs are highly coveted — or just sound like fun — are stepping up efforts to weed out people who might have the right credentials but the wrong personality.

Call it the "plays well with others" factor.

Job candidates at investment banks have long endured dozens of interviews designed, in part, to see whether new hires will get along with everyone they'll work with. Whole Foods Market Inc.

Israel Gibbons, left, works for Lindblad Expeditions, which wants friendly workers.

holds group interviews, in which work teams grill candidates and collectively picks hires.

Now other companies are setting up higher hurdles.

"In this bloggable, cellphone-camera world, your brand on the inside is going to be your brand on the outside. If you have a bunch of jerks, your brand is going to be a jerk," said Tim Sanders, a former leadership coach at Yahoo Inc.

Despite a labor shortage, some employers are pickier than ever about who they hire.

With the national unemployment rate low, at 4.7 percent, and the baby boomers heading into retirement, employers from Microsoft Corp. to rural hospitals are worrying about finding enough workers. But companies like Rackspace Managed Hosting are bucking that trend, working hard to find reasons to turn potential employees away.

Rackspace CEO Lanham Napier said, "We'd rather miss a good one than hire a bad one."

The 1,900-person computer server hosting company is divided into 18- to 20-person teams. One team is so close, the whole group shows up to help when one member moves into a new home, Napier said. Job interviews at the San Antonio-based company last all day, as interviewers try to rub away fake pleasantness.

"They're here for nine or 10 hours," Napier said. "We're very cordial about it. We're not aggressive, but we haven't met a human being yet who has the stamina to BS us all day."

There's a possible downside, however. In a Harvard Business Review article titled "Fool vs. Jerk: Whom Would You Hire?" Tiziana Casciaro of Harvard and Miguel Sousa Lobo of Duke University point out that people generally like people who are similar to them, so hiring for congeniality can limit diversity of opinions. One venture capitalist told the authors that a capable manager he worked with built a team that "had a great time going out for a beer, but the quality of their work was seriously compromised."

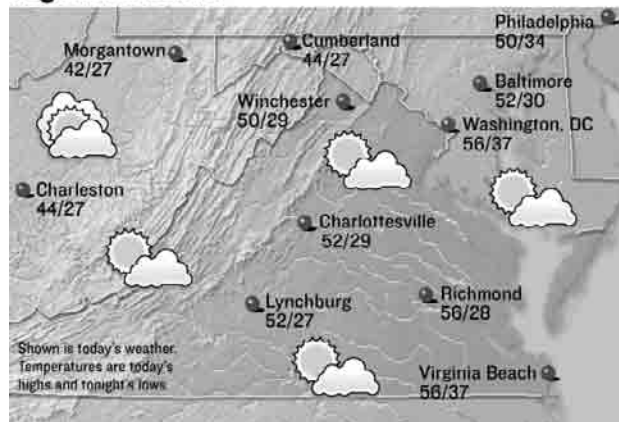

That's not the worry at Lindblad Expeditions, a 500-employee adventure cruise company.

Kris Thompson, vice president of human resources at Lindblad, said, "You can teach people any technical skill, but you can't teach them how to be a kindhearted, generous-minded person with an open spirit." ELLEN SIMON (AP)

Safari Style

Banana Republic says, 'Welcome to the jungle, buyers'

In 1978 when the founders of Banana Republic, Mel and Patricia Ziegler, launched the company in California, they turned safari military looks into a fashion statement.

But stepping into a Banana Republic store now, the high-end brand owned by Gap Inc. since 1983, very little aside from the name would ever hint at this travel and adventure focus of the past. When the Zieglers' company was acquired, the company rebranded it as the city sophisticate's go-to for runway style and upscale quality at accessible prices, which is what it continues to do today.

For the spring '08 collection however, presented during a runway show on Nov. 1, Banana Republic revisited its safari roots, updating khaki classics like the trench — as a chic belted sleeveless shirtdress or vest — and included military-inspired blouses and jackets. For both men and women, there were also relaxed wide-leg trousers.

The fashion-forward Banana Republic customer with her eyes on looks she saw come down the New York runways for spring — high-waisted voluminous short skirts at Proenza Schouler, sleek racerback tank dresses at Calvin Klein, or bold knits in '70s-inspired colors at Marc by Marc Jacobs — will find plenty to love in this collection. looked smart when paired with a white military-inspired buttondown shirt, while maxi-length silk tank dresses popped in bright purple, and exuded Saint-Tropez elegance in a yellow geometric print version.

And while three-quarter length sleeve coats in mustard yellow and dresses in hunter orange may not find many takers, a key for any spring wardrobe will certainly be the inclusion of jolts of bold color.

For men, Banana Republic offered crinkled cardigans, loose khaki trousers or slim seersucker pants. Compared with the women's collection, where things were structured but loose, the men's line was more body-conscious and trim.

A Hole New World

It possesses the architectural grace of a suspension bridge and the functional elegance of a garlic press. (Because, really, what else is so perfectly perfect for its purpose?) The STAPLES ONE-TOUCH HOLE PUNCH ($30, Staples) does a simple thing: It puts two or three holes in up to 20 sheets of paper. But it does it so beautifully, users of sub-par punchers will weep with joy. The chads (remember that term?) collect in an easily removed drawer. It requires about a third of the force of a regular puncher, and the handles lock in the down position for storage. This one's a life-changer, boys and girls. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Warming Friend

When the stuff we rub on our faces cools, warms or even burns (chemical peels hurt, but they also work!), we at least know it's doing SOMETHING. The first few times we used Kiehl's LINE-REDUCING EYE-BRIGHTENING CONCENTRATE ($40, Kiehls.com), it stung a bit — with pure vitamin C as a key ingredient, that's not shocking. (The sting was gone by the fourth use.) As with all anti-aging product tests, we didn't use it long enough to revert to age 20, but undereyes were less puffy and less gray. H.J.M.

Discussions

TV Writers Strike

Washington Post staff writers WILLIAM BOOTH and LISA DE MORAES were online Tuesday to discuss the latest news on the writers' strike and what the shutdown means for soap operas, prime time and late-night TV programs.

I guess there are really only two questions: How dug in are the studios, and how long is the strike likely to last?

One never really knows when it comes to union and management negotiations, because both sides produce a lot of hot air. But Nick Counter, who represents the film and TV producers, keeps saying that this could be a very long strike. Five months? Sure, maybe.

To what extent will news shows be affected?

News shows are not affected because those writers are not covered by this guild. Ditto sports programming.

Frankly, I think this strike will hurt the studios more than the writers. The number of TV viewers has diminished quite a bit, and now they will have a good reason to just turn off the tube and do other things.

That is a possibility much discussed out here in Lala Land. Jim Brooks, executive director of “The Simpsons,” told me Monday something along the lines of “You don't want to give audiences another reason not to watch TV.”

How long would the writers' strike have to last before the second half of the season would be scrapped?

They appear to have scripts in hand that would take most prime-time shows through early next year. Then they are in trouble. No scripts. No shows.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll hit upon a clever and creative way to make more money — but you may not see an increase of funds for some time. Trust your plan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're in no position to call the shots at the workplace. But if you play your cards right, you can gain more authority in the days to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your good taste may fail you somewhat, as you fall under the spell of something at which others wouldn't even look twice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your insecurity is on the rise, but when you look about, you'll realize that you have all your ducks in a row. Don't rock your own boat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Be quick in assessing an unexpected situation if you're to avoid the pitfalls that are threatening you and others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are in a romantic frame of mind, and, fortunately, your mate — if you have one — will favor any and all attentions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can work closely with a good friend, or you can work alone. One will allow you to maximize your rewards; guess which it is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You should be able to surmount any obstacle and overcome any distractions to get your work done. Evening brings entertainment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're in the mood to do a good deed for someone in need — and you won't have to look any further than your own home. Someone is relying on you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your day — and week — will open on a note of the highest expectancy. Take others on a journey of discovery, and you'll learn a lot as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sharing your life with others on a more frequent basis, openly and honestly, can bring you untold — and unanticipated — rewards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You have a keen eye for all that is beautiful, and this is a good day to surround yourself with those things that are aesthetically pleasing.
